About the author

śrīnivāsa, the author of haṭharatnāvalī has given some details about himself in the text. On the basis of this we learn that he was an erudite scholar well versed in the vedas, vedānta, tantra, nyāya and yoga. From his narration, it appears that he wrote commentaries on the works of śaśadhara and maṇikānta miśra. He also composed the work called vedāntaparibhāṣā.

He was the resident of the Tirabhukta region. His father was a great astrologer, probably named saravara as per the Nepali commentator and the name of his mother was somāmbā. He adores himself with the titles such as kalitārkika-cuḍāmaṇī, sakala-nyāyaśāstra-saṃpradāya-pravartaka, nyāyācārya, sakala-haṭhayoga-pravartaka, jayalakṣmī and mahāyogindra.

From the frequent quotations of haṭhapradīpikā, it is clear that he received an inspiration to compose haṭharatnāvalī from svātmārāma although śrīnivāsa criticises him on some points.

Contents of the text

śrīnivāsa calls his treatise of haṭhayoga as haṭharatnāvalī. Alternatively he also calls his work as haṭhayogaratnasaraṇī or ratnāvalī. The contents are divided into four chapters. The distribution of various topics is as follows:

Chapter I

In this chapter after introducing himself, śrīnivāsa gives the purpose of his treatise HR. He gives various definitions of yoga and explains mahāyoga under which he describes mantrayoga, layayoga, rājayoga and haṭhayoga. He explains the relationship of rājayoga with haṭhayoga on the same lines as of HP. He gives elaborate description of eightfold purificatory processes called aṣṭakarmas in place of usual ṣaṭkarmas, according to the tradition of his guru. He criticizes svātmārāma for not including cakrikarma under the purificatory processes. He gives a great importance to the practice of cakrikarma and recommends it to be practised during jalabasti instead of using a tube to be inserted in the rectum for which he also quotes the authority of yogī carpaṭi. He provides additional information on the karmas like nauli, basti and kapālabhrānti by giving different varieties. Under nauli he describes two types, namely, bāhya nauli and antarā. But the distinction between the two is not clear. basti is also described of two types — jalabasti and vāyubasti for which the use of cakrikarma is recommended. In kapālabhānti a variety is given wherein the head is moved towards left and right while exhaling rapidly. In the practice of gajakaraṇī, instead of plain water, jaggery water or coconut water is recommended.

The purpose of these karmas is not only to remove the excess of fat and mucus but to purify six cakras, to provide basis for prāṇāyāma, to remove all kinds of disorders and to contribute to the healthy body which is an instrument on the path of liberation. It is also described how different karmas purify specific cakras.

The other topics dealt with in this chapter are description of a hut for yoga practice, mitāhāra, recommended and prohibited food items, helpful and harmful things in attaining the success in yoga and ultimately the list of great siddhas who attained success through hathayoga and conquered death.

Chapter II

This chapter elaborately describes nine kumbhakas and ten mudrās. Alongwith the eight well-known kumbhakas, one more kumbhaka is described under the name of bhujangikaraṇa. uḍḍiyāna is called bāhyoḍḍyāna. vajroli and khecari mudrās have been dealt with in great detail. The synonyms of idā, piṅgalā and suṣumnā given here are not usually found in other hatha texts.

Chapter III

This is mainly devoted to the elaborate description of 84 āsanas. The author starts with the topic of aṣṭāṅgayoga, but describes only mānasa niyamas and kāyika niyamas. No explanation of these is given.

āsana being the first component of hathayoga the author deals with this topic elaborately. He gives the list of 84 āsanas, but explains the techniques of only 36 āsanas. He mentions in the list four types of padmāsana, six types of mayūrāsana, three types of kūrmāsana, and five types of kukkuṭāsana. After dealing with the topic of āsanas, he discusses the importance, technique and the effects of prāṇāyāma.

Chapter IV

It deals with samādhi and the techniques like nādānusandhāna, four states of progress in yoga, such as ārambha, ghaṭa, paricaya and the niṣpatti and the experiences during each of these states.

There is a discussion of piṇḍa and brahmāṇḍa in which elaborate description of 14 nāḍīs is given as well as philosophical statements from different sources like sūtasamhitā, viṣṇupurāṇa, bhagavadgītā and different schools of philosophy such as nyāya, prābhākara, sāṃkhya, advaita have been briefly mentioned. This chapter seems to be hurriedly and abruptly ended.
